Joseph Rogers, Esq.

Box 97. Bowmanville Ont.

Dear Mr. Rogers. Thanks very much for ^{your} interesting letter of March 7th. It certainly is a good start on trying to trace our family connection. I have a lot of information at my home in Woodstock Ont. but can quote you from memory fairly accurately. The first James Rogers I have track of was born in Londerry Ireland. immigrated to New England States about 1720. his son James settled in Cumberland County, Province of N.Y. not quite sure if that word is correct.

And left there after the Revolutionary war. and came with his family to Old Mill. near Picton Ont. about the year 1770. his son David Mc.regor. my great grandfather. lived in Carrying place. near Brighton for a number of years. and moved from there to Wrafton. Ont seven miles East of Cobourg in 1805.

my grandfather James, Esq.

and my father. Robert J. resided at The old homestead near Grafton. My father died in 1910. my mother still resides at Grafton.

The names Robert. James appear to be old family names. my first name being Robert. and also my oldest sons. My records at home would give other connections. both male & female. I might say. my. Great. Great. grandfather James had a brother Robert. who commanded a battalion in the French War. prior to America Revolutionary War. which was called. "Rogers Rangers" most of this corps. came over to Canada with my Great. Great. grandfather. I understand settled along the Bay of Quinte. I think I can find records showing the names of all those who came over to this country with my Great. Great. grandfather. Your family settling near Kingston, and the name James. would lead me to think we are of the same stock.

I certainly will make it a point, to stop over some time and see you, as I occasionally go down to the old home at Grafton Ont. The tract of land mentioned in my previous letter was the Deed for 24-150 acres in the County of Cumberland Township of Kent. It seems like those old grants are receiving attention.

You did not mention whether you had any old papers or books belonging to your grandfather James, all such things might help materially. Yours very Truly,

R. P. Rogers.

We have a book about wars. in it is some thing about Rogers Rangers. I'll look it up.

GENEALOGICAL RESEARCH

My dear Mr. Freeman,

You will probably remember my name as we had some correspondence on your Phebe Wentworth who married Sylvanus Freeman.

As Miss Fulford has written, you because of the death of Miss Freeman, our former librarian, she asked me to look up the Rogers data and write to you.

Would you like me to see if I can follow up the William son of James of Londonderry? James of Dunbarton seems to have had no son of that name. I shall be glad to do so. There are no restrictions on research except those imposed by lack of gas etc. And that no longer interferes

Sincerely yours,

Alice S. Thompson

Dear Mr. Rogers. I'm talking to my sister - ^{her} Mrs. C. H. Rogers of this city last night. She stated you were some what interested in a tract of land in U S A. granted to Rogers prior to Revolutionary war.

I might say I hold an original deed for a large tract of land so granted to one James Rogers in 1760. I would be very interested in receiving from you any information regarding your ancestors, as far back as you can trace. as if I can trace my connection between your family & mine. I would make it a point to stop over and see you sometime. My home is near the town of Cebary, where my family have resided for the past four generations. Yours very truly,

R. P. Rogers.

Committee Reports

IN the beautiful Cookson Hills, lying in the eastern section of Oklahoma, are thousands of Cherokee Indians barely existing and until recently deprived of adequate school advantages. If you were to travel over the highways, which have been constructed through these hills, and see the tiny log cabins nestled among them with only meager open spaces where cultivation is possible, your first query would be concerning food. The country, while noted for its beauty, is not tillable, and the only means of acquiring a little money is through the sale of lumber for railroad ties. The homes, generally built of logs, vary as in any community. Some, the homes of the more prosperous, have doors and glass windows. All too many have not those "luxuries" to keep out the cold and rain in the winter.

Recently, the Department of Indian Affairs has built more schools in these rural communities and Indian boys and girls are being placed in them as teachers. Because of my connection with Bacone Junior College, I have had personal acquaintance with and interest in a large number of these teachers. My admiration and respect for these unselfish young people is unbounded. They are more than teachers; they are community workers and missionaries.

Last spring I was privileged to take a group of visitors from the east to one of the rural schools. Upon our arrival we found that the pupils, with the teacher and his wife, were having a picnic in the woods in celebration of April Fool's Day. An older Indian woman, caring for the baby son of the teacher, told us how to find them. "You know it where Squirrel Wild-cat lives?" Upon being told we did, she said, "You turn there and go it down to July Sam's house and find children nearby."

Following her directions, we drove our car into the woods as far as possible and walked a short distance to a "branch", as they call a small tributary stream in this country. We found the adults washing wild onions in the stream. If you have never eaten the Indian dish, wild onions and eggs, you have missed a delightful treat!

The teacher whistled for the children, and in a few minutes we saw little Indians coming from all directions. Juanita came carrying on her hip her baby sister. The mother of these children works in a sewing room at a nearby village, and Juanita was compelled to keep the child with her, even at school. Their home is a one-room log cabin with one open window. There are seven in the family, and the father has been ill with tuberculosis for some time.

At Bacone, there is a well-equipped Home Economics Department, and we are hoping to make the child-care class more practical by having a baby for use in demonstration work. Following this theory, and with a hope of assisting the mother of little Juanita, we asked for her and the baby sister for six weeks. After some thought, the mother agreed to the proposal, and in a few days they were brought to the school. The tub bath was a terrifying experience, especially for baby Pocahontas. But after the bath, clean clothes, and a few trinkets, both were radiantly happy and so were the students of the class! The next day the entire family of children was taken to town for haircuts and new shoes. But before they had returned, the mother arrived with head bowed and tears dripping from her eyes. She told us how she lay awake and cried all night for the baby. We kept the child and mother the rest of the day. Perhaps the lesson of home ties and mother love was worth more to the class than all the demonstration lessons they would have had otherwise.

As a sequel to this story, I wish I might show you some of the fine young men and women who have gone out and made good in their chosen field. It is glorious to be part of an institution which is helping in a big way to give such a worthy race of people educational advantages infinitely more important to their future than all the restored moneys and lands could ever be.

And so, let us go on with the work of assisting the Indians in availing themselves of opportunities open to other citizens, by working in harmony with all who have the interest of the Indians at heart.

American Indians.*

THE RANGERS, UNDER MAJOR ROBERT ROGERS, TAKE TO THE SWAMP TO LEAVE NO TRAIL BEHIND THEM FOR THEIR FRENCH ENEMIES TO FOLLOW. A SCENE FROM THE MOTION PICTURE, "NORTHWEST PASSAGE"

Motion Pictures

THE following pictures are listed as suitable for type of audience indicated, and the synopsis is given to aid you in selecting your motion picture entertainment.

Audience classifications are as follows:

"Adults," 18 years and up; "Young People," 15 to 18 years; "Family," all ages; "Junior Matinee," suitable for a special children's showing.

NORTHWEST PASSAGE (MGM)

Director: King Vidor. Cast: Spencer Tracy, Robert Young, Walter Brennan, Ruth Hussey.

An historical adventure based on the first half of Kenneth Robert's famous novel dealing with the activities of "Rogers' Rangers". It is a Technicolor presentation of the incredible difficulties met and the fortitude shown by Major Rogers, one of the colorful figures of Colonial history, and the sturdy sons of New England under his command in their daring attempt to find a northwest route to the wealth of Asia. The Indian wars and other pre-Revolutionary War events form the historical background and offer an authentic picture of the eighteenth century period when Maine was still an outlying frontier. The production is a pretentious one and the cast notable, with Spencer Tracy playing the role of Major Rogers. An outstanding picture of historical significance. Adults and young people.

FIVE LITTLE PEPPERS AT HOME (Columbia)

Director: Charles Barton. Cast: Edith Fellows, Dorothy Ann Seese, Clarence Kolb, Dorothy Peterson.

The further adventures of the Pepper family include financial reverses for their new found friends, Mr. King and his grandson, a return to the modest cottage formerly occupied by the Peppers, a hunt for a lost copper lode in a deserted mine, a serious accident in the mine and the dis-

My Dear Freeman:-

I need require a double apology to explain the long delay in answering your very kind inquiry about our branch of the Wagon. Similar part of which connection we already have discussed thru the St. Highland.

definitely go over this history with you -
as it is certainly interesting.

Found also letter to uncle your who entered Canada U.E.R.
Also there something about 1794 - in the

during one of us Weds, east. in the manuscript life is also connected with business, with more of the old time log-

At that time, I think I mentioned and still think so, that your
Gr. Gr. Grandfather William R. was a brother of

by Gr. Gr. Grandfather James who entered Canada U.E.R. about 1794 - in the original family thought
ref. in Mass. & Vermont.
There were four or five sons William, Amos, Volunt, etc. At least.
We've got a seal
of the family; found

facts, and opportunities ~~for~~^{all} reminiscences of the past. If we don't watch carefully, the past will be as much of a blank as the future.

My best wishes to you & family for 1934.

Cordially Yours
Charles H. Rogers.

Mr W.R. Freeman;
Brighton, Ont.
Dear Mr Freeman:

Your very welcome letter of long standing I very carefully placed with my Rogers material waiting for a few minutes of leisure to answer the same. I have been very busy this summer and the genealogical letters have simply piled up on me.

In regard to Anna or Anne Rogers. I am not sure that she married Stephen Wheeler. That is just tradition. I can find no such record. Stephen Wheeler married Anna A according to her tomb stone in the East Cemetery. who was born 1753. He was born 1745 and died Feb 1821 aged 76/ She died Dec 31, 1827. So this was not the same Anna or Anne that you mention. Stephen and Anne Wheeler had children Hannah-Ann- Jannet-Stephen- Richard and Peggy. Note the Rogers famile(children of Samuel and Anna Caldwell Rogers. William-Richard- Mary- Margaret or Peggy-Anna-Elizabeth.

The children of William as I found them recorded in Bow Records were Nancy born May 19, 1773.

Benjamin R. born Jan 5. 1775

Samuel born May 19, 1777

Martha born Aug 11, 1780.

Now you state that William had a son Armstrong. How about the above children.

Just had a letter today from Dr Ray G. Hulburt of Oak Park, Ill asking for the ancestry of John Campbell Rogers born 1826 . probably at Raleigh, N.C. son of Samuel and Clarinda (Campbell) Rogers. He had (Samuel) a brother Gilbert and they are said to have had a brother Tom.

I can give him no help on this line.

Recently I was fortunate enough to purchase Stearns set of New Hampshire Genealogy. It says of the Rogers family--

" Roger or Rogers is derived from the word Hruod, in Frank, Brother in North German, and Ruhm in the modern German, meaning fame or glory. The Rogers family is one of the most ancient and numerous in this country. There were no less than eleven by the name of John Rogers among the seventeenth century immigrants. Savage says that none of these early settlers can establish a claim to descent from John Rogers who suffered martyrdom at Smithfield in 1555, though many of them have traditions to that effect. Probably the earliest American Rogers was Thomas who came over in the Mayflower with his son Joseph and died early in 1621."

The Bramfield Conn. line is that of a William Rogers who mar. Ann and had children, Obadiah, John, Samuel, Mary, Jonathan, Noah and Hannah. Mrs Ann was a Widow in 1669/1669 .

Noah had Mary, John, Josiah, Thomas, Hezekiah, Noah, Elizabeth and Ann. Noah died in 1725.

John 3, mar. Lydia Bowers and had, Lydia, Mary, Hannah, Elizabeth, John, Joseph, Daniel, Samuel and Stephen. John Rogers died about 1750 in Bramfield, Conn.

This sounds a lot like the Dunbarton family record.

John, Joseph, Daniel, Samuel, are Joseph Patney's family names.

I have never been able to trace back of Joseph Rogers. He is found first in Methuen, Mass. records.

I am probably not writing anything of interest to you but if you should happen to know anything about this Dr. Hurlburt's ancestors I wish you would let me know.

There is a Dunbarton, Ontario, Canada. and I corresponded with the Post Master there and he said there were many Rogers in the vicinity.

Thanking you for all your valuable information regarding the Rogers family I remain.

Yours truly

Dear Sir:

Your letter has been handed me by the Town Clerk of this Town. He knows how deeply interested I am in town history. For many years I have been writing the history and genealogy of this town and of course have quite a little Rogers family history but it is vague because you are the first descendant of this family I ever heard from.

I am wondering if you would send me data of your mother's family of her present family etc. that I may add it to my Rogers Family Record.

I have so little regarding this family. There seems to have been two James Rogers. The one that came to Starkstown, now Dunbarton with his farther and brothers and sisters was born in Methuen, Mass.

James Rogers the first settler of Dunbarton and his wife Mary came to Dunbarton with six sons and probably several daughters whose names we never learned. Three of the daughters were probably

- ✓ Catherine who married Frank Miller.
- ✓ Martha who married John Miller a neighbor in Dunbarton.
- ✓ Mary who married James Blair; Mary was born in Methuen Mass.
Aug 3, 1736.

✓ The sons were Daniel the oldest.

- ✓ Samuel the 2nd son. born 1725. Robert (the famous Major Robert Rogers)
- ✓ Richard who died of small pox at Fort Henry; James.

17-1747-24
Samuel settled early in Bow N.H., a short distance over the hill from his Dunbarton father's humble home. This was afterwards and is to-day known as the Goodhue homestead in Bow.

He purchased 70 acres in Bow of the Proprietors in 1757 so he must have been a grown up son at the time of the migration from Methuen to Dunbarton. Samuel married Anna Caldwell of Goffstown, N.H. He died Mar 17, 1802 aged 77 yrs. He and his dau Elizabeth McConnell are the only one of the family buried in the East Dunbarton Cemetery. It is not known what became of Anna Rogers perhaps she married the 2nd time. Samuel's children, as recorded in Bow town records are

- 1. William married Nancy Rollins.
- II. Richard
- III. Mary married Sept 28, 1780 Concord, Alexander Simpson.
- IV. Margaret or Peggy, married Feb 24 1797 Jacob Flanders.
Her children were Samuel who mar. Margaret Bun---- (not plain) Jacob and Samuel. and had children Jacob Margaret & Samuel and Jacob who mar. Louisa Jackman.
- V. Anna married Stephen Wheeler of D. she was born 1753.
- VI. Elizabeth b. 1756 died May 30 1839; aged 83. married Jonathan McConnell of Onion River July 5, 1791.

VII! I have several anecdotes about this Samuel, and other records of the Rogers Family but with the exception of Anna Wheeler I know nothing further about the family. Please write me about your line. Samuel and Joseph Rogers are listed among the early settlers of Bow. Samuel Rogers Jr is also mentioned probably the son of James born 1749.

Yours truly,

Much land in Ontario was granted this Rogers family for services in the French & Indian War. There is a Dunbarton Ontario named for this town.

My dear Mr. Freeman:

Abstracts of the references to Major Robert Rogers and Col. James Rogers contained in our Revolutionary rolls are submitted herewith:

MAJOR ROBERT ROGERS

In a letter of the Committee of Safety to General Washington, written at Harlem, Aug. 30, 1776, information is given concerning a commission signed by General Howe to Major Rogers empowering him to raise a Battalion of Rangers with the rank of Lieut. Col. Commandant.

Tench Tilghman in a letter to William Duer, Esq. of the Committee of Correspondence at Fishkill, written at Head Quarters, White Plains, 27 Oct. 1776, mentions the General's approval of Duer's plan to send Roger's prisoners to the Convention of that Committee.

In a petition of the "inhabitants of Westchester County and members of the General Committee for said county" to the Convention, December 23, 1776, mention is made of Robert Roger's party of about seven hundred men who daily made excursions in parts of the county taking with them by force many inhabitants, also stock, grain, etc., and laying waste and destroying all they could not take with them.

In the report on the above petition is the order that the State Treasurer advance £500 to Major Ebenezer

Lockwood for defraying incidental expenses attending an intended expedition under command of Col. Malcolm against Major Rodgers, his Rangers and other enemy troops in Westchester County.

The Committee of Safety resolved that application be made to General Washington for permission to detach eighty men from Col. Tash's regiment to escort prisoners taken in a late skirmish with Col. Rogers, together with a number of dangerous and disaffected persons, to Exeter, New Hampshire. 1776

In the minutes of the "Committee for enquiring into, detecting and defeating all Conspiracies which may be formed in this State against the Liberties of America," Fishkill, February 15, 1777, Col. Rogers is reported as "broke for fraud."

On examination, Christopher Warren, a deserter from the enemy, stated that Rogers with one company was stationed below the bridge.

Letter of Committee of Safety for the State of New York by Matthew Cantine, temporary chairman, Fishkill, 12 Dec. 1776, to Brigadier General George Clinton informing him that the Committee has resolved to detach Col. Malcolm and Col. Thomas with their regiments and some of the militia of Westchester County and three companies of Rangers to fall upon Major Rodger's Rangers and remove the stock and grain from the said county. Brigadier General Clinton is requested to give the necessary orders.

The Committee of Bedford, Westchester County, Eben'r Ward, chairman, in a petition to General Clinton, commander in chief of the militia of Westchester County, asks protection for the town of Bedford against "a Sertain Company of Robers, otherwise called Rogers Rangers," concealed in parts of North Castle and Cortlandt Manor. Bedford, 9 May 1777.

information furnished by Robert H. Rogers, Esq., & W. Cunningham

his profession in Pictouville.

Robert H. Rogers, Esq., said:
"My grandfather, James Rogers, settled first in Vermont, & had several large tracts of land; then he was appointed an officer in the Queen's Rangers, & which he bore, & he was the chief officer; they were employed in the wars of the French & Indians, until the treaty made by the British, after which he said Robt. Rogers was ordered by Gen. Amherst to proceed westward & take possession of all the forts & places held by the French, as far west as Detroit & Michilimicine which he did in the fall of 1760; & he afterwards went to England, where he published a journal kept by him during the French & Indian wars

1765. He also wrote another work, giving a description of all the North American Indians. My grandfather continued to reside in Vermont until the time of the revolution, when he joined the British army, & after peace was proclaimed, retired near the east side in N. Edward. I have heard that he was buried in Frederickburgh, but do from Dr. Armstrong, we learn that "Major Rogers was born in Londonderry, Ireland, where he lived to some extent. He was among the earliest of the Irish-born people of the American continent, and he was a member of the first settlement of the colony of New York, which was founded in 1614. Major Rogers was born on the 13th of July, 1717. Major Rogers was the father of Dr. Armstrong, and I thought it was a pity that his family, which was a large one, was not better known. The family of Rogers was a large one of land. There he lived until he died in 1792. He was a soldier, (see Queen's College). After the conclusion of the war, Major Rogers, returning his property in Londonderry, which had been destroyed, his ideas of cattle raising, and appropriated to their own use by his neighbors, removed with his family to Canada, & settled in Fredericton, N.B. That he had been there previously & explored the country, & that he had taken with him a corps of soldiers, is altogether probable, for I well remember to have seen in my earliest boyhood, evidences of previous military strife, such as numerous broken guns, swords, & other worn-out weapons. At Fredericton, Major Rogers erected, as he had done before at Londonderry, N.B., the first frame house in the town. How long he remained there I am unable to say, but probably several years. My own birthplace, Aug. 29, 1789, was in a little village one or two miles below his residence, & was one of his legacies, he probably remained there for some time after that event. I find no record of his death, but it probably took place about the year 1792. He was buried in F., as were his widow & eldest daughter (my mother), 1793. His eldest son James, ret'd. to N.B. & recovered a considerable portion of the land in Lon. He afterward, in 1819, removed with his family to Haldimand, where he died several years ago. His second son, David McBrien, familiarly known also as "Major Rogers," remained in Canada up to the time of his death about 1823. While quite a young man he was elected a member of the first parliament of Upper Canada. He then resided at Little Lake in the Twp. of Hallowell. He afterwards removed to Cramate, where I found him in 1803, engaged as a merchant, holding the office of Clerk of the Peace, Cl of the District Court & Registrar of deeds, besides being a member of Parlt. & carrying on a farm. His name is pretty closely identified to the early history of U. C. He was a man of great energy of character & sound judgment, was highly respected & esteemed, & died greatly lamented. After remaining in Fr. several years, the family of the late Thos. (James) R. removed to the "Little Lake", so called. This was the scene of my earliest recollection. In the same neighborhood had resided Mr. Peter & his family. He was a native of New England, & having been in the Crown, became an American, & was among the early settlers to Canada. He afterwards removed from the Little Lake, first to the Chazy Place, & afterwards to Cramate, about the year 1804, where he died many years ago.

Under Queen's Rogers will be found some account of Major Rogers derived from Labine. We here give further information, procured from Robert D. Rogers Esq. and Dr. Armstrong of Rochester N. Y. who is a native of Fredericksburg and who for many years practiced his profession in Boston and England.

Robert D. Rogers of Axbornham writes: My Grandfather James Rogers, settled first in Vermont and had several large tracts of land there. He and his brothers were officers in the Queen's Rangers of which his brother Robert was chief officer. They were employed on the part of the French and Indians until the taking of Quebec by the British after which the said Robert Rogers was ordered by Gen. Amherst to proceed westward and to take possession of all forts and places held by the French as far west as Detroit and

He also wrote another book giving another book giving a description of all the North Amer. Colonies. My grandfather continued to reside in Vermont until the time of the Revolution when he joined the Br. Army, and after peace was proclaimed, settled near East Burke in P.E. County. ROGERS OF "NORTHWEST PASSAGE" VENERATED IN TORONTO

(By MAJOR J. C. BOYLEN of the Queen's York Rangers.)

The Queen's Rangers, first commanded by Colonel Robert Rogers of "Northwest Passage," are perpetuated by the Queen's York Rangers. The latter's official title also includes, "1st American Regiment," the distinction won by their Loyalist predecessors under John Graves Simcoe, the commander who led them for six years of daring and successful action.

The order of Cornwallis to the Queen's Rangers to include themselves in the surrender at Yorktown was obeyed, but Simcoe saw to it that the regimental colors were not included in the trophies of Washington's victory. Today those colors are a treasured public possession in another York town founded on British soil by the commander of the Queen's Rangers of the American Revolution. Those colors, resting in the Toronto Public Library, thanks to the liberality and enterprise of Colonel F. B. Robins and the late Dr. George Locke, are a tangible link connecting this city with its founder.

So far as known no building associated with Simcoe remains today in the capital in which he sojourned for four years as Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada under conditions primitive to a remarkable degree. They must have been rigorous for his gentle-bred and often lonely wife. The Simcoe nursery beside the Don was in a dwelling mainly of canvas which had been used by Captain Cook, the explorer.

To Upper Canada Simcoe brought another unit of Queen's Rangers. Not a corps on the grander lines he had planned, however. To it, among other things, fell the duty of constructing the beginnings of Government buildings at the Town of York, the new Capital of the Province. In addition to providing such fortifications as conditions permitted they also did garrison duty. Another outstanding work was the construction by them of Yonge Street. This highway between Lake Ontario and Lake Simcoe was the successor of the Indian trail by the River of Toronto, or Humber, as it became known in Simcoe's time, to the waterways leading to Georgian Bay. Until Jay's Treaty in 1796 settled the border difficulties and removed the imminence of an Indian war associated with the British retention of the western posts at Oswego, Niagara, Detroit and Michillimackinac, the military activity of the Queen's Rangers was characterized by the initiative and enterprise of their predecessors under Rogers, and later under Simcoe during the Revolution. By this time Simcoe's entourage in Upper Canada included members of his original corps of Queen's Rangers of the Revolution.

From 1796 until officially disbanded in 1802 the record of Upper Canada Queen's Rangers was, in a military sense, a retreat from glory. Their numbers were steadily reduced and their employment was mainly road-building, the clearing of farms and colonization work generally. Of this period Dr. Locke writes: "The people of York themselves were keenly disappointed, for they had grown to consider the Rangers their special property and pride—but Lord Dorchester was adamant to all appeals." The lure signified by "Northwest Passage" was no more. Rogers was but a name. Simcoe had left North America for the last time four years before. The last commander was Lieut.-Colonel Samuel Smith, who had been a company commander in the original Queen's Rangers.

Members of the Queen's Rangers were among the first settlers in what is now York County. Some of their lands, then thought remote from Government House, are now within the city limits of Toronto.

When loyal men were called to suppress rebellion in 1837 the response of York and its county town, now Toronto, included a battalion of Queen's Rangers. Its commander was Samuel Peters Jarvis, son of William Jarvis, first Secretary of Upper Canada, who had served in the original Queen's Rangers. While this body ceased to be active in 1838, it was, according to Dr. Locke, "not disbanded until the forties."

Following the alarm of 1866, when Canada organized a militia consisting of county and other units, William D. Jarvis, a cousin of the Queen's Rangers' commander of 1837, and a son of Sheriff Jarvis, a Captain of the unit of 1837, became the first commander of the York County Infantry Regiment. According to a statement in the minutes of York County Council the name of Queen's Rangers proposed for the regiment was not approved. The name York Rangers was authorized instead.

In any case, the Rangers' tradition persisted as it does to this day. During the last war the contribution of the York Rangers to the C.E.F. totalled the equivalent of a brigade of infantry of that time. After the reorganizations of the militia following 1918 the York Rangers consisted of two active battalions. In 1925 the 2nd Battalion, with the West Toronto Regiment, became the Queen's Rangers. In 1936 the York Rangers and the Queen's Rangers were merged as the Queen's York Rangers. Lord Rothermere, the London publisher and present owner of Simcoe's Devonshire home, Wolford Lodge, is their Honorary Lieutenant-Colonel. Among their treasures in Fort York Armouries is a rare portrait of the first commander of the first Queen's Rangers, Colonel Robert Rogers of "Northwest Passage."

Put Up Good Fight.

The army does not point it out, naturally, but a glance at the map of North China shows that the vast majority of these Chinese troops are operating behind and between the Japanese lines.

They are made up, according to the survey, of Chiang Kai-shek's Central Government troops, former Provincial troops, and Chinese Communist forces.

The former Provincial troops are in the majority, and are relatively poorly equipped and often far from their homes. Independent reports bear out the Japanese contention that they are the poorest fighters. Yet these independent sources indicate what the Japanese do not mention, that some of them put up a good fight against the superior equipment of the Japanese Army. For instance, General Yu Hsueh-Chung's former Manchurian Army (it has been wandering about China for the past eight years) has given the Japanese Army no rest in Shantung for the past two years.

Chiang's Central Government troops are stationed partly in Shansi and Honan Provinces. Although well equipped, they make little better showing than the Provincial armies. The vast bulk of Chiang's army is in Central and South China.

Reds Best Battlers.

In North China most of the real fighting—the best, according to this Japanese survey has been done by the Chinese Communist forces. This survey does not mention their numbers, but in the past the Japanese Army has repeatedly credited them with around 200,000 men, probably far below their real regular strength. Neither does the estimate given by the Japanese include literally millions of irregulars attached to those forces.

"In fighting spirit and ability they (the Communist regulars) are the best in North China," says the survey. "Whenever they learn the Japanese strength is low they make surprise attacks. When they see it is strong, they retreat and apply 'scorched earth' tactics, destroying everything of use.

"When we begin punitive measures we find they have disappeared and we cannot find them. To nurse their own strength and to avoid frontal clashes with us is their main strategy."

on was mentioned tonight as an immediate reason for Russia and Italy to come together in a better understanding as a result of Monday's Brenner Pass conference between Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

Russia always has had oil that Italy would like, but informed quarters said Italy had not been interested in contracting for it when the only feasible means of transport was through the Black Sea and the Dardanelles.

Also Italy regarded the Soviet Union as an unpromising trade partner and an even worse political associate.

But Germany's new friendship with Russia, elimination of Poland as a buffer State, and the development of land transportation facilities have made Russian oil more accessible to Italy, it is claimed here. German economic experts claim there is, or soon will be, a secure land route for the transportation to Italy.

The Brenner Pass meeting was called a demonstration of the firmness of the Axis, and German spokesmen expressed irritation over interpretations that it was the beginning of a "German peace offensive" staged for the benefit of President Roosevelt.

The German news agency, D.N.B., denounced suggestions that Hitler had made a peace gesture.

"Germany has nothing to say on the subject of peace" after the Fuehrer's Reichstag speech Oct. 6 in which he suggested international mediation, but said Germany would yield none of Austria, Poland or Czecho-Slovakia, the agency stated.

One commentator said there was an ideological gulf between communism on the one hand and fascism and nazism on the other, precluding the possibility of Russia's joining the Axis in partnership, such as that of Germany and Italy.

In the economic realm, however, this commentator expressed belief the three nations could well work together.

China Buys Arms in U.S.

Washington, March 19 (AP).—China is again buying United States arms on a sizeable scale to aid her in the war against Japan, now nearly three years old.

She obtained State Department licences in February for the export of $3,911,193 worth of arms, ammunition and implements of war. Previously her imports were averaging several hundred thousand dollars per month.

The major portion of China's purchases consisted of aeroplane engines.
